

Pararescue specialist Larry Zimmerman prepares to lower himself out helicopter door

War birds of mercy

"Lifesaving — that's our mission."

Capt. Bill Freeman of the Air National Guard mounts the short ladder into the big, pale gray helicopter.

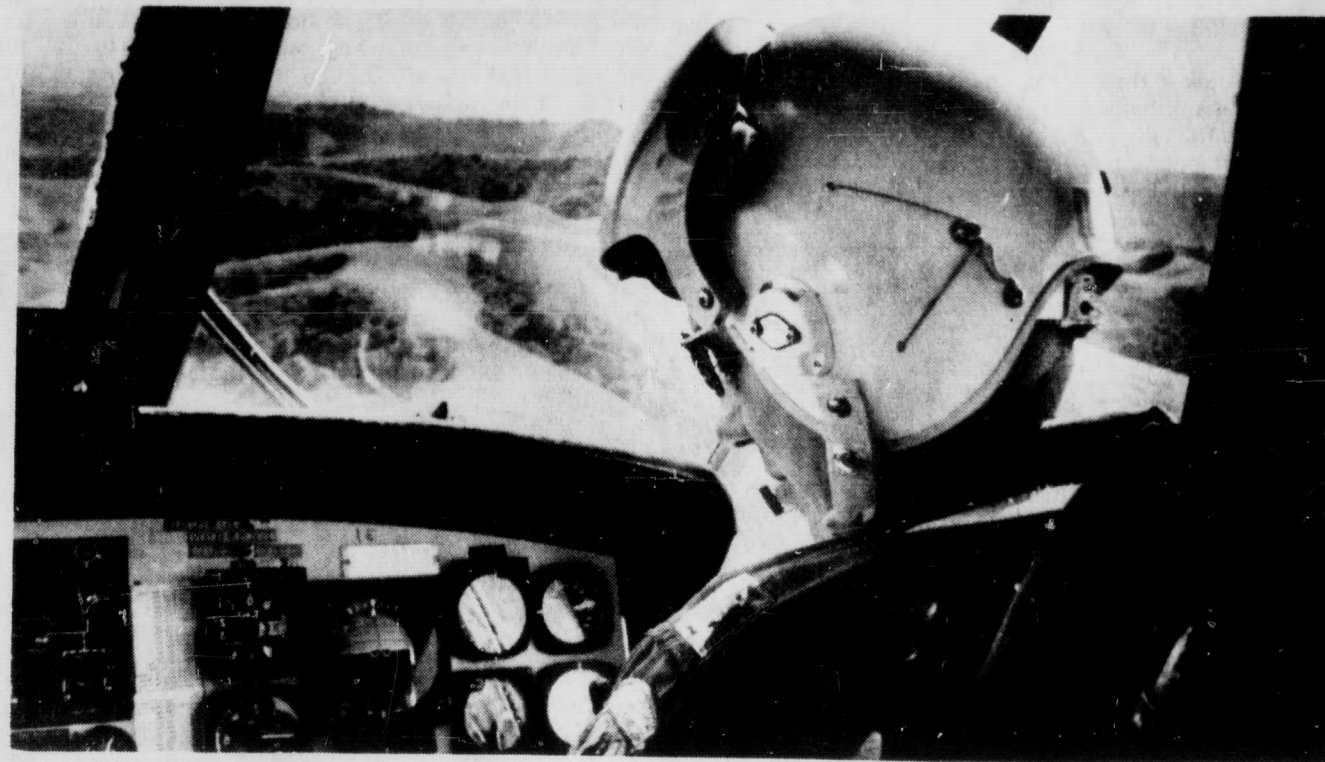

Showing up brightly against the grim wires and rivets are fold-up seats made of red nylon. "Those," he said, "can be made into litters to hold 13 wounded men." Above the seats are green canvas packets labeled FIRST AID KITS.

Something that looks like a mattress in a basket is stowed near the tail of the plane. "We can strap a man in here on the ground and hoist him up if we have to."

He points out a gaudy yellow metal - and - canvas gadget shaped like a torpedo. The sides fold down to make three tiny seats. There's a loop of canvas over each seat. "To go under the victim's arms," Freeman explains.

"Even if he's unconscious."

Rocky, Teller to speak at opening of new Lab wing

LIVERMORE — Former Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller will be the featured speaker at dedication ceremonies of a new science building at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

The dedication of Fannie and John Hertz Hall, the new home for UC Davis students studying graduate work in engineering, will be held Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. at the new building near the LLL Visitors Center.

Other speakers include Edward Teller, university professor emeritus; Roger E. Batzel, LLL director; Allan B. Hunter, chairman of the board of the Hertz Foundation; James H. Meyer, chancellor at UCD; and Frederick O. Wooten, chairman of the science department, UCD.

A UC Davis spokesman said Rockefeller was invited to speak by Dr. Teller. A press conference scheduled to precede the ceremonies has been cancelled.

Hertz Hall honors the late Fannie and John Hertz who set up the Hertz Foundation, dedicated to the promotion of education and the enhancement of the defense potential and technological stature of the U.S. The applied science department offers graduate training and research for about 100 UCD students, using facilities on the Davis campus and at the Livermore Laboratory.

Hertz Hall is located across from the LLL Visitors Center off Greenville Road north of East Avenue. A tour of the new building will follow the dedication ceremonies.

Coffee heist suspect trio await jury

SAN FRANCISCO — Three men accused of stealing 12,000 pounds of coffee, including a 37-year-old Dublin man, await grand jury action on a complaint filed by the U.S. Attorney's office.

The Folgers coffee, destined for Denver, was stored in a trailer at the Illinois California Express terminal in Hayward. The trailer, emptied of its $36,000 merchandise, was found in Pleasanton Feb. 19, one day after the theft.

The FBI arrested three suspects and recovered 70 of 500 missing cases of coffee. Daniel Fernandez Basque, 37, of Dublin was booked on suspicion of theft from an interstate shipment; Clifford R. Ortiz, 38, and Nikolas H. Rizzo, 30, both of Hayward, were booked on suspicion of possession of goods stolen from an interstate shipment.

A spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office said yesterday it was seeking felony indictments from the grand jury on all three suspects. The grand jury's response would be known in a month, he said.

Rowell land seen as rodeo fame hall

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — The Valley may become the site of a national "Rodeo Hall of Fame" on some 26 acres of the Rowell Ranch in the Dublin Canyon.

Attorney Jack Smith, representing the estate of the late Margaret Rowell in a zoning matter yesterday, told county supervisors there has been grass roots talk among national rodeo stars, many of whom got their start on the Rowell Ranch grounds.

Breeders across the country also have expressed interest, Smith added.

Advocates are interested in 26 acres adjoining the east side of the current rodeo grounds. The land, peppered with buildings used in conjunction with the rodeo, was put in a "life estate" created by Mrs. Rowell.

Smith emphasized there are no formal plans, telling the board of supervisors that talk to date is "nebulous."

But when arguing the estate's zoning case before the board, he said the land "probably" would "sometime in the future wind up in the public domain."

Rowell zoning, pg. 12

After the meeting he said there has been considerable talk among famed rodeo stars and breeders to start the "Rodeo Hall of Fame" on the Rowell Ranch.

The Rowells, he said, were pioneers and innovators in the national rodeo and breeders circuit, and their memory is well respected by professionals.

surprisingly large crowd", said the Valley Assemblyman.

The game is an annual tradition and this year Mori organized the event. He won't be able to see action next week in another game against the lobbyists, but hopes to be in the lineup a few weeks later for a rematch with the staff.

Forgery bust may lead to state ring

PLEASANTON — Pleasanton Police Tuesday arrested three suspected bad check passers, one of whom has allegedly been linked to a statewide forgery ring, it was reported yesterday.

The Department of Justice confirmed that one woman arrested is a member of what is known as the King - Brown gang, a statewide forgery ring that has operated across the state for more than one year.

Arrested were Belinda Crockett McDuff, 26, of San Bruno; Reginald B. Dixon, 27, of San Francisco; and Anita Maria Eberhart, 23, of Las Vegas. All were charged yesterday with one count of forgery, three counts of possession of forged checks with intent to pass, and one count of receiving stolen property, all felonies.

Det. Jim Balch observed a woman matching descriptions of a suspect in previous forgery cases leaving Wells Fargo Bank on Santa Rita Road Tuesday afternoon. He radioed one patrol unit to stop the car while he checked the bank and determined the woman had allegedly cashed a $355 check using a Pleasanton woman's name.

Officers transported the teller to the scene of the arrest, and she identified her as the woman in question.

A search revealed the three occupants had more than $1,000 cash, three checks, two pawn tickets and several torn pieces of paper thought to be checks, police reported.

A local bank confirmed that more than $3500 in checks had been stolen and forged from a Los Angeles firm. Three checks from that same firm were totalling $1,235 were allegedly found on the suspects.

Balch said the King - Brown ring is an "extremely large group" that has operated in California for more than a year. He said he has received calls from police agencies across the state inquiring into the arrests.

All three suspects remain at Santa Rita Jail pending bail of $35,000 each. The case will return to Livermore Municipal Court March 14.

Teller warns on gas

The father of the H-bomb said Thursday the safety of liquefied natural gas — which he said has already killed 200 people — should be studied as intensely as nuclear power plants.

Dr. Edward Teller, associate director emeritus at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, testified yesterday at a legislative hearing on LNG, which California utilities want to bring in at up to a billion cubic feet a day from Indonesia and Alaska in the early 1980s.

Teller said "serious research on LNG is now being started after 200 lives have already been lost, which compares with nuclear reactors where zero lives have been lost."

The retired University of California professor added the effort to check LNG safety represent only 1 per cent of the safety study on nuclear plants. He said such a study would cost $1 billion and should be done by the federal government.

Two LNG tragedies he cited were these: 1944 in Cleveland when LNG spilled into sewers and was ignited, killing 130; and 1973 on Staten Island, N.Y., where a storage tank fire killed 40.

Labor pact draws comment

The peace pact signed between the Teamsters Union and the United Farm Workers yesterday will help the work of the Agricultural Labor Relations Board, but not all of its problems are over, Assemblyman Floyd Mori said.

Mori is chairperson of the Assembly - Senate Joint Committee on Supervising the Agricultural Labor Relations Board.

Many of the problems which the ALRB supervised were jurisdictional disputes between the UFW and Teamsters. Apparently these won't come up anymore and in that respect Mori's ALRB committee won't be so busy.

On the other hand, UFW and Teamsters will be free to take on the growers in more elections around the state, so the action in that area should pick up and the net effect may keep the ALRB about as busy as it has been, said Mori.

News of the settlement, announced at 11 a.m. yesterday at a press conference at Teamsters headquarters in Burlingame, will cause Mori's committee to reexamine its budget and see if any adjustment will be necessary in the committee's workload, said Mori.

The Parkway problem

Sixteen Pleasanton families are attempting to strike a compromise with the city over a future Del Valle Parkway which would run near their homes.

Homeowners say they would accept the four-lane parkway if it was stretched out next to the current two-lane road bordering their property.

It's a bad idea, says the director of engineering. It's a feasible one, say some city council members, but one the homeowners would have to pay for.

Long trek begins

Rain or shine, more than 3,000 walkers are expected to make a 20-mile trek Saturday for the March of Dimes.

Dan Connors, former Raider star, will join 20 Pleasanton Jaycee members and Foothill High cheerleaders to lead off the march.

The walk begins at the county Fairgrounds and winds through Livermore before returning to the starting point. The trek begins at 8 a.m. Saturday.

BART gets director

Eugene Garfinkle, San Francisco attorney, has been chosen by Bay Area Rapid Transit directors to succeed Elmer Cooper who resigned early this year.

Garfinkle was elected on a 7-1 vote on a second ballot over Anthony Wagner who was nominated by BART director Ella Hutch of S.F. Garfinkle was nominated by Arthur Shartsis of Oakland.

Sixteen families and a parkway

PLEASANTON — Sixteen families who live on a narrow, two lane sliver of asphalt that is the current version of the Del Valle Parkway want to keep it that way as much as possible, but it's not clear yet whether they will get their wish.

The families know that Morrison Homes will build across the street from them and something must be done about the Del Valle

Parkway. All 16 families would prefer that the city leave the two lane street in front of their homes as is and put a new four lane parkway next to the Arroyo Del Valle, far from their homes.

But they've given up on that idea. Instead they would be happy if the city would put the future four lanes next to the existing two lanes, making the two lanes a frontage road.

Director of Engineering Services Don Sooby thinks that's a bad idea. It would create traffic problems coming on to the parkway, since there would be only four feet between the frontage road and the parkway — a little like the frontage road on Santa Rita Road across from Amador High School.

The frontage road would be a one way street and there would be no parking allowed on it, said Sooby. That's something the residents there have never talked about, he noted. Right now, there's no parking on the road, but people park on the dirt next to it. They won't be able to do that when the parkway is developed next to the two lanes. But if the city develops the four lane parkway as originally intended, there would be parking allowed. It would be just like Las Positas Boulevard in Pleasanton Meadows.

Despite Sooby's objections to converting the two lanes into a frontage road, some council members think it might be all right, provided that the extra $30,000 or more involved is paid by the residents themselves through an assessment district. However, there don't seem to be three clear votes for this. Mayor Robert Philcox is not sure he would depart from the original plan. However, if he does favor the exception, he definitely would require the assessment district.

The residents probably would not pay the assessment district, in the opinion of resident Mary Singleton. That amount split 16 ways just won't be popular, she said.

Singleton is the only resident who has not given up hope of having the four lane parkway built along the Arroyo Del Valle. That way children in the future Morrison and Detweiler developments won't have to cross a busy parkway to get to school and motorists would have a nice, scenic drive along the arroyo.

But it's 10 years too late for that, said Sooby. Specific plan lines have been drawn for all the affected properties; changing them would involve buying up property and also depriving the small Detweiler property of some of its development ability. (Detweiler has two or three acres next to Morrison and can develop 36 apartments or eight single family homes.)

Air rescue stays trim

Suddenly it all becomes very vivid — the terror of being hurt in battle, of being hauled 200 feet through the air into a hovering, roaring chopper and loaded onto a skimpy litter for the long trip to a military hospital.

Do the daring men who make combat rescues expect any mercy from the enemy as they haul their helpless victims from the battleground?

Freeman laughs. "The machine guns are mounted there," he says, pointing to a spot behind the cockpit, "and there.

"Light machine guns, just for protection. Usually we're escorted by combat-equipped planes."

It's easy to imagine this stark, sturdy chopper hovering over a jungle in Southeast Asia. But today it's parked at the southern end of Hayward Airport along with other Air National Guard rescue planes. It's getting ready to take off for practice maneuvers at Camp Parks, off I-580 and Dougherty Road in Pleasanton.

Valley residents living near the big federal spread have probably already seen an Air National Guard rescue practice without realizing it. Two or three times a week — sometimes at night — Air National Guard H-3 helicopters and C-130 planes swoop across the rolling hills, dropping men and supplies for mock emergencies.

They could be called on at any time to handle a real emergency: a plane crash, a ship accident, an earthquake or flood. Although combat rescue is their primary mission, the men of the 129th Air Rescue and Recovery Service fly their "Jolly Green Giant" helicopters all over the world when needed.

Today, the five-man rescue team, dressed in leather boots, green jumpsuits and snug jackets, are going through a final check of the chopper.

"Nice and clean," Freeman praises Tech. Sgt. Ken Dudick, today's flight mechanic, whose red mustache curves upward with his grin.

Co-pilot will be Maj. Dick Kern, who flies 737's for United Airlines in civilian life.

Unzipping their helmet cases are the real stars of the rescue effort — a pair of pararescue specialists who are at once mountain climbers, scuba divers, parachutists, psychologists and medics.

Senior Master Sgt. Al

BORN LOSER

If you think things sometimes go wrong for you, you'll feel better after laughing at "The Born Loser" each morning in The Times comics.

Richmond — a Pleasanton resident — and Airman 1.C. Larry Zimmerman are two of the relatively few men to have made it through a grueling 11-month pararescue course. Their "basic" training included scuba and parachute jumping school, a study of medicine (they can even perform minor surgery), survival school and mountain climbing training.

Now it's time to strap on the heavy white helmets, which are equipped with lip microphones and earphones. A deafening roar from the two propellers makes it obvious why they're needed.

A sudden takeoff and "Jolly Green" is airborne — whisking by the Cal State, Hayward campus, over emerald-green hills and, in just minutes, down toward Dublin and Pleasanton.

Now, the cabin door slides open. Secured by a long seatbelt, Zimmerman leans out to direct the pilot to a precise landing spot. "Two hundred feet forward... 10 feet... two feet... hover..."

He lowers himself to the ground to pick up some imaginary victims, then rides back up on the hoist.

For a second exercise, Richmond jumps out of the plane with a walkie-talkie and directs "rescue operations" from the ground. The crew have chosen a remote spot well north of the county prison, federal youth prison, firing range, radio station and other facilities that share Camp Parks.

A stiff wind whips over the hills. Sometimes the air is gray with rain and fog but today, dazzling sunshine makes visibility easy. At night, the copters send out powerful beams of light — touching off nervous reports of "Martians landing" from residents in the area who don't know about the military practice.

Hayward Airport seems like a dull place after the brisk practice run. "I've been doing this since 1971," Freeman confesses, "and I still find it exciting."

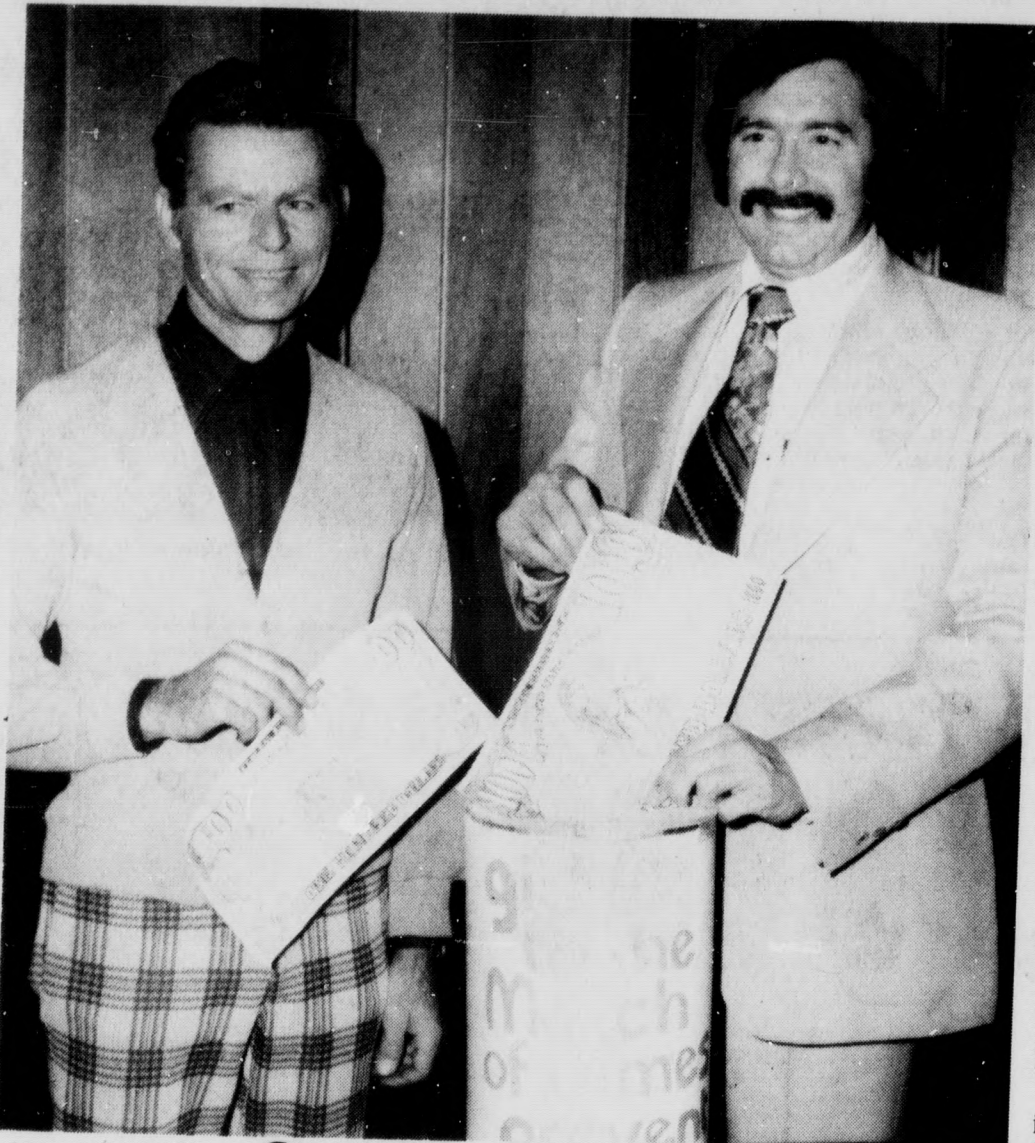

The three men in charge of the Hayward mission — Lt. Col. Grant Pyle, Lt. Col. Edward Aguiar and Lt. Col. John O'Sullivan — are proud of their snappy unit, which is frequently called upon for a variety of emergencies.

But the real endorsement for "Jolly Green's" mission comes from the rescuers who take their lives in their hands to save others.

Richmond calls it "the most rewarding work I can think of."

Helmet in hand, he glances for a moment at the rows of empty litters and his voice becomes soft. "When you pull a man out of danger who would otherwise have died, and you glue him back together... the look on his face is your reward."

Gearing for walk

Two organizers of the Valley Walkathon, to be held Saturday, contribute to what they hope will be a full can of cash. Roger McLain (left), chairman of the Pleasanton March of Dimes, and Bob Schaible, of Pleasanton, March of Dimes board member, ask Valley residents to give generously to volunteer walkers. The fifth annual walk begins at 8 a.m. at the fairgrounds in Pleasanton, winds 20 miles through Pleasanton and Livermore, returning to the fairgrounds where volunteers will be treated to a rock concert by "Tykus." Sponsor sheets may be obtained from MacDonald's, or by calling 836-2267.

Space snag

Could fill VW plant

PLEASANTON — The empty, large office building which formerly housed Volkswagen of America could be filled again if the city would repeal its 5,000 square foot minimum requirement for potential tenants of the building.

That point was made Wednesday night to the planning commission by Jim Stratton, an official of Vorelec, the real estate arm of Volkswagen of America, which is leasing the building from its builder, Reynold C. Johnson.

The city has the 5,000 square foot minimum requirement so that the building, located in an industrial park, will house only industrial type offices. Otherwise it would add its 13,000 square feet of space to the city's whole pool of office space and compete against downtown and neighborhood shopping centers.

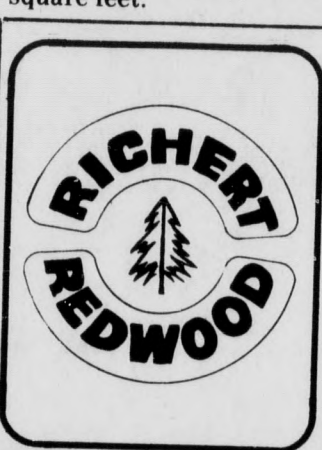

Because the change could affect other offices in the city, the planning commission decided to hold a public hearing on the request at its regular meeting in April. It will give the Chamber of Commerce and local property owners a chance to comment on the proposed change.

An alternative to changing the ordinance's minimum space requirement would be to rezone Vorelec's building to office use. That would have the same practical effect on the city's available office space and also will have a public hearing.

Stratton's firm advertised last fall and had inquiries that would fill a total of 16,800 square feet. Many of the potential tenants needed small offices in the 150 to 300 square foot category, though a few went as high as 2,500 square feet.

Livermore pitch

Councilman finds transit fund doubt

LIVERMORE — Pending federal legislation which would provide operating grants to cities for public transportation systems may or may not apply to Livermore's hopes for a bus system, according to Councilman John Staley.

Staley returned Tuesday from a trip to Washington, D.C., where he served on a transportation policy committee of the National League of Cities and also lobbied for the bus system and a new city hall.

Confusion over Livermore's applicability stems from a provision in legislation (S-108) which would allow such funding for cities up to 50,000 population.

"Livermore has approximately 50,000 people now but the bill doesn't define at what date that 50,000 must have been reached, who determines the status, and whether it includes the surrounding area or just the area within city limits," said Staley.

Staley told The Times he met with Congressman Pete Stark and an aide to Sen. Alan Cranston on the matter and was asked to have City Manager Bill Parness write for more information.

"This bill is important if we are to be included," he said. "And, if not, we must try to get it amended."

"If federal funds are not available we're not likely to have a bus system in Livermore in the near future."

Staley said 1972 legislation would provide money for acquisition of buses, but not operating expenses. He noted a proposal worked out with AC Transit last July which would provide Livermore with an eight line system, buses running every half hour.

That system would cost $393,000 a year, with $300,000 coming from Metropolitan Transit Authority.

"The voters would not go for a six cent tax override to supply the local matching funds," he said, expressing hope with news the Carter administration plans to put more money into transportation.

Staley said he also persuaded Stark to investigate federal programs which would qualify Livermore for funds to build a city hall.

He suggested funding for projects involving energy saving construction methods and told Stark of an idea he got from the architects of the proposed multi-purpose center.

"They wanted to have an air conditioning system using the gravelly soil at the civic center site to deliver 65 degree air to the building year round," said Staley, hoping city hall could provide a demonstration project with federal funding.

He also said the Carter Administration plans to quadruple the money available under the Public Works Employment Bill which is funding the First Street overpass project. However, he called chances of using such money for a new city hall "slim," since only three projects were selected in Alameda County for the previous funding.

Staley said the 55 mile per hour speed limit was also debated at the conference, with little success at efforts to have it repealed. He noted differences in driving habits between East and West coasts, which cause people in the west to be more for repeal while people in the east having the voting power.

Veteran college district business manager retires

Peter A. Barthelme, a well-known figure in California community college circles for the past 27 years, has retired as business manager of the South County Community College District.

His successor is Walter S. Robie, formerly business manager of the Mendocino Community College District in Ukiah.

Born on a farm in Iowa, Barthelme attended high school in a town of 800 and graduated first in his class. At 17, he began working in a bank, but joined the U.S. Navy when World War II started.

In 1949, he settled in California and was first employed in the newly formed Contra Costa Community College District. He was graduated from Diablo Valley College and worked himself up to the position of business assistant for the district.

Working for Contra Costa at the same time was Dr. Reed L. Buffington. The two formed a friendship that lasts until this day.

When Buffington accepted the superintendency of the new South County district in 1961, he asked Barthelme to come along as business manager.

Barthelme has been active in community affairs since his tenure at Chabot, particularly as a member of the Hayward Kiwanis Club and its annual junior rodeo. He has also devoted his energies to scouting, other youth activities, and the Elks Club.

One of the first priorities for Barthelme and his wife, Faye, is fishing and travel. They plan eventually to settle on the Hawaiian island of Kauai.

CC college staff seeks 12% raise

Community college teachers in the Contra Costa County are asking for an approximate 12 per cent salary increase this year under their first proposed collective bargaining agreement.

The contract proposal for 1977-78 was submitted to the Contra Costa Community College District's governing board this week by the United Faculty of the district (UFCDD).

The UFCDD represents approximately 1,000 teachers, counselors and librarians at the three community colleges in the county — Contra Costa, Los Medanos and Diablo Valley.

Bob Flanagan, UFCDD representative and DVC professor, said teachers were asking for a 4 per cent across-the-board increase coupled with a cost-of-living increase.

The proposed contract also names the UFCDD as the exclusive bargaining agent for teachers in future negotiations with the board under the California collective bargaining act.

The board accepted the proposal without comment and hasn't yet scheduled a public hearing on the matter.

Flanagan said he is looking forward to good-faith negotiations between his group and the board's representatives.

"We formed our own organization so we could represent ourselves and face people across the table we know and respect," he said. "We think this situation will best serve all of us in the district."

In addition to the salary increase, the contract asks for the continuation of existing fringe benefits, district-paid life insurance, and more flexible early retirement and leave-of-absence policies.

Livermore lists nine scholars

Nine Livermore students are up for big college scholarships as National Merit Scholarship finalists.

Seven of the top scholars are from Granada High: Benjamin Belzer, Bruce Boer, Laura Hamilton, Carl Latkin, Juliet Musso, John Pfeifer and Scott Rychovsky.

At Livermore High, finalists are Sandra Essex — who was graduated in January — and Marvel Walters, a new student who took the qualifying test last year while in Guam.

More than 14,000 finalists who took the tests in their junior year are now being considered for the 1,000 National Merit $1,000 scholarships and some 2,800 four-year Merit Scholarships to be awarded in April.

The ancient Roman goddess Clementia was the personification of mercy and clemency. Her likeness is found on many Roman coins, a standing goddess with a holy dish in one hand and a scepter in the other.

Scholar finalist

Daniel F. Garlock has been named a finalist in the 1977 Merit Scholarship competition. Dan is being congratulated by Roger Dabney, assistant principal at Amador Valley High School. As a finalist, he becomes one of a highly select group of students who represent less than one-half of 1 per cent of the nation's graduating seniors. Winners of awards in 1977 and their principals will be informed during the mid-March through early May period, and non-winning finalists will be notified by May 9.

Professor knocks I.Q. test skeptics

SAN RAMON — Dr. Arthur Jensen, professor of educational psychology at the University of California, systematically took apart purported evidence and comments that say intelligence tests are discriminatory and invalid.

Jensen spoke to approximately 80 persons at a Diablo Chapter, Phi Delta Kappa, dinner last night.

A prolific contributor to many educational and psychological journals, Jensen advocates the position that genetic factors outweigh environmental influences in accounting for individual differences in I.Q.

Jensen said intelligence tests have been under attack in recent years. "The popular press has played this idea of discriminatory testing to the hilt," Jensen contended.

Jensen, later using slides to substantiate his contentions regarding I.Q. tests, said he was interested in the validity of the charges against I.Q. tests.

Referring to allegations made against such tests by minority groups, Jensen said, "people forget that I.Q. tests show the largest discrimination between youngsters in the same family."

The slides illustrated his contention that the tests are not culturally biased.

SULFURIC ACID NEW YORK (AP) — Sulfuric acid — one of the most widely used industrial chemicals — also helps make a vast array of consumer products, from foods to plastics, reports U.S. Industrial Chemicals Co.

Soft drinks, for instance, rely on it. Sulfuric acid is used to make citric acid, the additive that increases the tartness in soft drinks. Citric acid is also used in processed cheese and pharmaceuticals.

Other everyday products to which sulfuric acid contributes include wet cell batteries, gasoline, detergents and paper.

A new look

Incumbents did not fare well; women are making their political presence felt; the people are ready to accept "teacher representation" on the board if that is what it takes to get public schools back on course.

Those are some of the impressions an interested person might draw from Tuesday's balloting. The message of those who took the time to participate in the elections seems to be that the old - line "business as usual" is as outdated in school administration as it has been in city government for the last dozen years.

It is particularly encouraging, and predictable, that women are now accepting a much larger share of the political burden in school administration. They are, for the most part, closer to the children and to the teachers; they can usually devote more time to a trustee post, particularly one during the daylight hours when teachers are on the job; and they bring a sensitivity to "school board proceedings" which has been too often absent in the recent past.

The evidence of "trustees who might represent the teachers' views" is, in our view, a positive move. We believe the community is far better served by having educators work with us as equal partners, communicating before the next contract crisis; certainly the old pattern of stubborn confrontation has not worked to the public's benefit. That was the position The Times took in making our own recommendations, even while we also hoped for balance within each school board. We are more than gratified at Tuesday's results.

Now, might we all look forward to enlightened action by our elected representatives to get next year's contract talks moving well ahead of another Armageddon?

FOCUS/Amador talks

One more time?

Can students and parents of Amador Valley High School District afford another contract negotiations deadlock tonight?

I would not think so. There is a feeling rampant now that the strike vote taken two weeks could be implemented before another week is out.

But on the other hand, the expressions we've gotten from Dave Woolworth, president of the Amador Valley Secondary Educators' Association, say the teacher unit leadership will exhaust every effort to bring about a contract.

Carl Krause, assistant superintendent for personnel says "think positive!"

But the intent and spirit of these remarks by Woolworth and Krause have to be translated into action at tonight's negotiation session. As stated before, most recently last Friday, the gathering at the district offices in Pleasanton MUS include a majority of the trustees, the administration and the teacher negotiating team, face-to-face across the table.

The role of Keith Breon should be that of legal counsel and adviser—not as chief spokesman - negotiator for the administration.

Four of the five board members were present for parts of last Friday's 10-hour session. It is imperative that the board president, Wally Decker, be present. Just as Dave Woolworth of AVSEA should be present along with ALL members of the teacher negotiating team.

We know that Charles Beazley, who missed the last session, will want to be present. Beazley has two more years to serve and as a veteran, conscientious trustee would want to be present to lend his counsel. So would Dr. Geraldine Donaldson, who also serves through 1979, and just reelected Jack Delaney and Wayne Barnes.

Delaney, in a moment of frustration Tuesday, said he was tired of being the "hard guy." Frankly, Delaney should know there are no "hard guys" or villains or hero's on either side. But there ARE some 4,800 potential "victims."

Representatives of these students, who along with their parents stand to be the losers in any strike, expressed a portion of their feelings to the board Tuesday.

It is a growing source of irritation and concern to these young people at Dublin, Foothill and Amador High. Ditto the parents, as expressed by one lady at the board gathering.

The district says classes will continue as usual should there be a strike. They say the Amador district has about 100 substitutes available and access to the sub lists of 16 nearby districts. We are told they would receive "premium pay" of up to $60 a day. We are also told that if a teacher agrees to take an overload of students, they could be given additional pay.

Effort should be directed toward not what might happen but what SHOULD be happening. And that is settlement on a contract.

round the town

Stand by for another of those movies that will "tell it like it really is." We're getting swamped with truth - movies lately. All of them loaded with dirty words and movements to match.

Must make the younger generation curious. "If people were always swearing and screwing around, how come you've been keeping this vital information from us young 'uns?" So they go to the movies, to get educated.

As one who lived through part of "that generation" and has so far survived this one, I confess that dirty words and related actions were items that simply didn't occupy our lives ... not all that much.

Scribble a few lines on the walls of the public toilets ... make an obnoxious hand signal to an offending character on the other side of the classroom ... things like that. And now then Dadeo would let loose with some language that could render the room as shattered as that new milk pitcher I just dropped.

But none of these things so dominated our lives that we felt cheated when oldsters failed to educate us in the art of swearing, or to reveal private parts of their body so that we too might "know the score."

The score was always "us kids out front by a whole bunch," as I remember it. The money we never had, the menu that was always short, the car we never owned ... those were all adult things, and adult worries. So too with sex and swearing and beating somebody up until he bled. Those were adult pastimes, too.

"Slap Shot" is supposed to be a movie about hockey ... "about how hockey really was" ... including a great deal of foul language, sexual exploits, the usual latter-day enlightenment.

Now, I guess maybe I've seen five thousand hockey games in my time. Played in a couple thousand or so. Got bumped around, and did a little bumping of my own. Exchanged a few pointed words with the other team, when it seemed appropriate. Hockey is no game for the faint-hearted.

But it was, and still is I guess, a game. A sport we played to test our muscle, let off energy, enjoy the thrills. But I want to confess that not once in all those thousand or so games I played did I ever have sex. Never even thought about it. Too damned busy during the contest, too damned tired afterward.

And if there were unkind words now and then on the ice, they were just part of the action ... like a slap shot taken and missed ... like a bruising fall you forget three seconds later ...

Hockey was the lifeblood of Canadian youth, in those days. Every hamlet with a gasoline pump also claimed at least one rink ... towns of 500 population fielded championship amateur teams ... high school kids were recruited from places like "Flin Flon" and "Yorkton" and "Swift Current" to go straight to the pro ranks.

Grownups served as team managers, refereed the games, filled the stands. Grownups got excited too ... threw around some language of their own, along with an occasional punch. It was all "part of the hockey action."

But for the life of me, I can't recall a single instance in all those hockey games and all those towns where somebody rushed off the ice to knife the other guy, or the other guy's girl ... or rushed from arena to bedroom without ever taking off his skates.

I guess maybe I led a sheltered life. Which is hard to believe, given the life and times of Moose Jaw throughout those depressed years. The economy was depressed, the people weren't. The weather was foul. The language was pure English ... direct, understandable, effective.

Now they want me to believe it was also filthy, and so too the minds of the people ... those who played "industrial league hockey" ... who slapped shots and people around with the savagery of an animal, or a Paul Newman.

Mr. Newman plays the lead role in "Slap Shot." He was asked if using all that foul language in the movie role might not hurt his image with millions of adoring fans. "We just have to tell it like it is," Newman answers.

More likely, he will tell it like the script writer says it was. He can make minor league hockey look like a throwback to the Roman orgies. He can do what he thinks he must, to sell his movie, to make another million.

But he's never going to convince me that hockey was a nightly gathering of filthy-minded men, impatient to get off the ice and into bed with the nearest broad.

I'll still meet Newman one-on-one at center ice for an hour's workout, then let him find the breath to say more than five words to anybody ... maybe just enough to advise his ever-loving wife ... "Not tonight, honey. I'm bushed."

... and newspapers

Newspapers often make a big thing of their own "endorsements" prior to an election, but the readers are left wondering at each publication's batting average in that contest.

In the 15 positions to be filled in five Valley school districts, The Times found agreement with the majority in eleven of our pre-election recommendations.

(Three of our "misses" were incumbents who struck out.)

The Tri Valley Herald & News connected with the majority in eight out of 14 endorsements offered by that newspaper combo; the Independent found happiness with seven of the winners.

We don't know what all that means, other than one more bit of information to store away in the election aftermath.

Youth boosters

From a superintendent of open space lands near Pleasanton, and a junior high school yard supervisor in Livermore came comments this week that are worth sharing.

Beverly Kellman is in daily contact with young people who, most of us believe, are at "that impossible age." Junior high school students do not often win accolades for their courtesy, their cooperation, or making a supervising adult "feel good" about each day's job.

But that is the feeling Beverly Kellman of Livermore has gained from teenagers who make up a large part of her day, on and off the job. She writes thoughtfully, lovingly, even poetically, and while we are unable to reprint all of her comments here, we still wanted to share her message with beleaguered parents, teachers and supervisors everywhere.

Al Spotorno supervises land for San Francisco Water Company;

those vast reaches of "open space" are often handy havens for litter and juvenile mayhem, including Bonita Park just south of Pleasanton, and which the city recently took off its muni park list "because we can't keep up with the vandalism and the garbage."

That is a loss many young people feel bad about, including a group of five young women who decided to launch an anti-litter campaign of their own; they attacked Bonita Park the other day, "filling 25 large cans with garbage of all kinds ... they did a heck of a job," Spotorno reports.

He's like to see that energetic five thanked publicly, and we agree. So to Sheryl Lewis, Angela Freymann, Shawn Freese, Debra Breau and Melanie Roberts a big "thank you!"

And thanks also to Al Spotorno and Beverly Kellman for reminding us of young people who enrich our lives and our community.

That prison, again

"Investigative team condemns Santa Rita Prison as unfit for further use."

So what else is new? The disclosures by politicians, by grand juries and by superior court judges as to the deficiencies of that place roll by as some tiresome litany. And, like hollering wolf, the Santa Rita lament is in danger of losing its impact through repetition.

But not to the people of this Valley. Even if the prisoners and the enlightened penologists weren't sick to death of that place, the several communities which must share its guilt through geographic proximity grow weary of the ugly disclosures, the tiresome court tests, one sad Santa Rita chapter after another ... and each with a local dateline.

Dear Supervisor Raymond: If you accomplish little else in your first term of office, the residents of Amador and Livermore valleys would be most grateful if you could just clean up that Santa Rita mess, once and for all.

P.S. While you're at it, clean up some of the people who operate that place.

Revenue sharing, and you

Editor, The Times:

Our city (Livermore) is about to receive $158,000 from the Federal Government. This money must be "spent" before Oct. of '77 and it is to be used for "projects."

It was a well kept secret (from the general public) that this wondrous event was to occur and hence all of these monies have been, in essence, allocated with no public input.

One of the features of spending this money, to be used for employment of the unemployed, is the implication that approximately $300,000 more is forthcoming. Now is the proper time for the general public to inform our council members how we would like our money spent.

Teachers' equality

Back when I was a teacher, I looked around for an American Federation of Teachers local to join. There was none at my high school and I had to make do with the California Teachers Association, which I considered an outfit sullied by membership from principals, who, after all, were management.

You can't get the classroom teachers together if their administrative buddies also want their interests represented by the same group, I reasoned. Well, that was more than a dozen years ago and I see things have changed a bit. I don't know if administrators still belong to the CTA, but whether they do or not, the CTA today seems to be approaching the militancy of the old AFT chapters.

The main focus seems to be "worker power," something that got started in America in the 1960's (in its most recent form after the 1930's) and simply states that workers ought to have more control over the jobs they do. I haven't seen any public discussion about actual increase of power in the curriculum or any of the other fine points of education, so I'll have to confine my comments to what I see in the press, namely worker power as it relates to dollars into teachers' pockets.

The most important issue around the Valley in the various teacher-board disputes is binding arbitration. This means that if there is an impasse in negotiations on grievable or negotiable items, like salaries, an outside arbitrator would come in and sort out the facts and render a decision binding on both sides. Currently there is one-sided arbitration. If there is an impasse, management has the power to declare whether the issue shall go to arbitration.

Board Chairperson Wallace Decker of the Amador Valley High School District gives an argument typical of board positions throughout the Valley. He thinks the status quo should be maintained on the issue of binding arbitration or the school board will lose local control over educational and personnel matters. In a way, he's right; in a way, he's wrong.

It's true the administrators would lose "control." Under binding arbitration, the administrators would be on an equal level with the teachers. They would share control on a 50-50 basis. The way it is now, the board and administration is in the top dog position, the teachers in the underdog role when it comes to power. I don't like that. Top dogs and underdogs nip at each other. As we learn from the human growth movement, the ideal is to share power 50-50, to meet people on the same plane of shared power; then you eliminate the top dog - underdog dichotomy that is destructive just by itself.

I see the educational process as having two sides; the board represents the parents and students who are trying to obtain the education for the child. They hire administrators to staff the schools. The teachers are the other half of the process. They bring that idealism, energy and knowledge that results in learning. It's a partnership and it ought to be an equal one.

As it is now, teachers can't strike; they are public employees and state law forbids public employees' strikes. So teachers are in a relatively powerless position. They can't withhold their labor as a club, the way the private sector can. And at an impasse in negotiations, management wins because teachers have to keep working and nothing changes on issues where teachers want change. Some school districts have binding arbitration; I think the day will come when all school districts have it. It's time for local districts to make the switch now.

Garbage

Livermore Councilman Glen Dahlbacka wants city council to create a recycling committee. One of the things that group would study is possible replacement of Oakland Scavenger with a city owned and operated refuse service.

Now, I'm no great fan of Oakland Scavenger. It has, for years, enjoyed an unhealthy marriage with local governments who offer the firm special monopolistic advantages and threaten punishment to others who try to earn a living hauling garbage for people.

The main reason for Oakland Scavenger's miserable service record and high rates is lack of competition in a land known for its so-called "Free Enterprise System."

Why not let some of the unemployed people acquire sanitary trucks and offer the community an alternative service. Watch the service improve overnight, with a more competitive price on the bills.

And, let's not hear that time-worn argument that garbage collection is a public utility. It is not and it never has been. One argument for monopoly arrangements with PG&E and Ma Bell is the limited number of poles that can go up, or pipes that can go underground. There is also plenty of room on the city streets for more garbage trucks.

But, government is government and big business is big businesses. They will always be making their deals at the expense of everyone's hard earned cash. The Fed's helped Lockheed. Local government assures Oakland Scavenger a monopoly.

Now, Dahlbacka isn't suggesting opening the Livermore streets to other garbage trucks — which would also be required to meet health standards and pay city fees.

He just wants the city to take over the whole operation. That's all we need, for government to take over another chore that belongs in the realm of private enterprise.

Look what happens to the city run garbage service of New York when there is a strike. With no alternative services available, the stench piles up in the streets.

And look at other government run businesses — like the U.S. Postal Service which has a virtual monopoly that excludes other groups from delivering the private mails. There is a super long list of these government businesses that are costing the taxpayers more money than the benefit received.

What we don't need is proliferation of bureaucrats in local government, gobbling up the tax dollars of our citizens. If anything, we should recycle some bureaucrats, decrease their numbers and spend the money on more police and fire protection, which is the most important function of any government.

The desire for governments — federal, state, county and local — to control the economy has only resulted in chaos, lack of freedoms, inflation, shortages and a lower quality of life.

Councilman Dahlbacka and the rest of the council seem to be intelligent and concerned people who have their community's best interests at heart, but I urge them to avoid converting city hall into a larger garbage heap.

Love those kids

Editor, The Times:

Just wanted to put in my two cents worth for our youngsters of today. I've been hearing an awful lot of criticism about how teachers quit their jobs, and although I can sympathize with them, I feel there is a real need for more people to express more positive comments, to commend our youth, from time to time.

I am working at East Avenue junior high, one hour a day, as the yard duty supervisor, and believe me, the kids will come up to me, and smile, and say how are you today, Mrs. Kellman?, or give me one of their cookies from their lunch, or give me a name plate, that they made in one of their classes, that is when I know why I keep coming back, why I really like my job.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My parents had a good marriage, at least, they said they had. My husband and I quarrel a lot and his mother says there's nothing wrong with a good quarrel. My parents are dead, but I can't remember their ever quarreling. I can't even remember raised voices. I wonder if other couples are as combative as we are. I just can't run to someone to ask something like this. — F.C.

DEAR F.C.: Let me assure you that almost all married couples quarrel. I suspect either your parents did their quarreling out of your sight, or else their marriage wasn't quite as happy as they professed. Couples who don't quarrel are apt to have a very undemocratic marriage with one spouse's personality totally subservient to the other.

In a recent Poll of American Women, over 55 per cent said that money was the cause of most of their arguments. Raising children (16 per cent) and in-laws (10 per cent) came in second and third as a cause of most family arguments.

Sex wound up in last place. This doesn't necessarily mean that sex isn't a problem, only that it's discussed less. Sometimes, people may fight about children, or even money, when the real problem is sex.

I agree with your mother-in-law in her view that a good quarrel, brought out into the open, can contribute to understanding and improved relations. It's a healthy way to blow off steam, so long as words are used, rather than fists, lamp shades or anything else. It can clear the atmosphere, ease the tension and reveal the true feelings of both persons. Each must, however, know how to fight fair if the battle is to be constructive rather than destructive.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I can't understand why my wife screams about not being active or having enough to do. I don't want her to go to work and this irritates her. But, her insistence on leading a more active life irritates me. My mother was content to care for her family and center her life on them. That's all I'm asking of my wife. I truly believe that women in the past who followed those simple rules were happier and a lot healthier. — R.U.

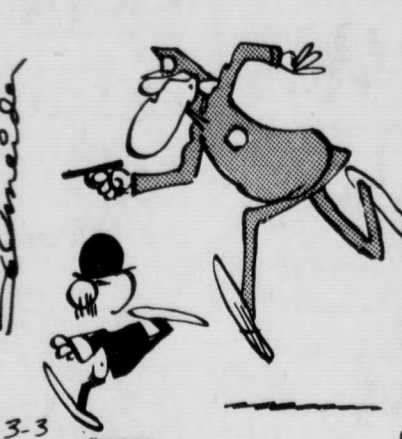

DEAR R.U.: Sorry, but I have to disagree with you. The woman who centers her entire life on her husband and children is sitting on a time bomb. She's apt to become deeply depressed and anxious when her children go away to school, get jobs or get married. She is much more apt to resent whatever romantic interests they may have as they mature and if her husband dies, or should leave her for another woman, she may even become suicidal.

There's an old saying that we all — male and female — need a wife, someone to wait on us, to be interested only in our well-being and to do chores. While everyone may want this kind of security and adulation, it isn't healthy for either the served or the servant. Both tend to become overly dependent. People who are the least active mentally and physically age earlier and are the most prone to disease. Failure to keep our minds and bodies actively engaged seems to cause us to decline prematurely.

Whether your wife takes a job or not should be up to her. If she decides she'd rather become involved in a community project or a hobby, she should be able to pursue these interests as well. I suggest you give her encouragement and support.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have been taking five tablets (total of 25 milligrams) of prednisone for the past six years for asthma. My only difficulty in the past has been that I bruise easily, but being 62 years old and quite active I haven't worried about that. Lately my back is giving me trouble.

Fortunately, I am going to a new doctor and he put me on a new medicine and is phasing out the prednisone. Would you have any suggestion regarding repair of my aching back?

DEAR READER: It makes a lot of difference what is causing your aching back. Backache can be caused from arthritis, muscle spasm and cancer, just to mention a few of the long list of serious and not so serious causes for backache.

Your history of prolonged use of prednisone hormone suggests that you may have degeneration of the spine. Decalcification of the spine with fractures of the vertebrae can be a complication of long term use of any of the cortisone groups of hormones. Anyone taking these hormones for any length of time should have regular evaluations of the bones to see if this is occurring.

If that is what you have it is technically osteoporosis, the same dissolving bone problem that is common in women after the menopause. I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10 on this subject. It will tell you about it and what medicines are currently used for it. I would certainly recommend that you take plenty of calcium, an equivalent of one quart of fortified skim milk or fortified low fat milk a day (1 gram of calcium a day). Some patients have benefitted with a combination of calcium, vitamin D and fluoride.

Asthma can be treated effectively with other measures now. Since you have been on prednisone for so long your doctor is wise in gradually phasing it out of the picture. Sudden withdrawal might cause problems.

Calcium, vitamin D and fluoride treatment is discussed in The Health Letter, along with exercises. In your case I think you had better get your doctor's approval for any exercises you do before you start any program. Others who want this information can send 50 cents for it with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

A. MOST NATURAL RUBBER IS MADE FROM THE MILKY JUICE OF THE RUBBER TREE. SYNTHETIC RUBBER IS MADE FROM CHEMICALS OBTAINED FROM SUCH RAW MATERIALS AS OIL AND COAL.

As we know, there are thousands of things made of the useful elastic substance we call rubber.

At one time, all rubber came from the milky sap of the rubber tree which grows on plantations in such warm lands as southeastern Asia.

To get the milky white juice, called "latex," workers cut several narrow slits in the bark of the rubber trees and let the latex drip into cups.

At the rubber factory, the latex is heated and mixed with certain ingredients to turn it into rubber. The kind of rubber that comes from rubber trees is called natural rubber.

Chemists have learned to make a rubberlike material from chemicals obtained from such raw materials as petroleum, coal tar and even potatoes. We call this kind of rubber synthetic rubber.

The world now uses more synthetic rubber than natural rubber.

Rubber got its name when, in 1770, an English chemist found it would rub out pencil marks.

Dons, MV lead all-star choices

Boys' All-Stars

These are the East Bay Athletic League all-star boys basketball players. From left they are Don Hall, Amador Valley; Sam Jorgensen, Amador; Mike Hansen, Amador; Joey Wujek, Granada; Kevin Jones, Monte Vista; Steve Sperber, Foothill; Ken Krey, Monte Vista; Mark McCreary, Livermore; Tim Jenkins, Livermore, and Phil Wiltz, San Ramon.

Amador Valley and Monte Vista dominated the 1976-77 boys and girls' All-East Bay Athletic League basketball teams announced today.

The Dons, who won the boys' title for the fourth straight season, and took the girls' playoff crown, placed three athletes on each squad. Monte Vista had two boys and three girls.

Amador had Sam Jorgensen, Mike Hansen and hot-shooting Don Hall named to the boys' unit. The Dons were represented on the girls' dream team by Jayne Kuhns, Sheryl Withoft and Debbie Oksen.

Monte Vista landed Ken Krey and Kevin Jones on the boys' team and had Carol Dolsby, Linda Silva and Sue Collar on the girls' all-star squad.

Other members of the boys' team included Joey Wujek of Granada, Steve Sperber of Foothill, Tim Jenkins and Mark McCreary of Livermore and Phil Wiltz of San Ramon.

The Pokes landed Patty Shirley and Janice Paxiao on the girls' team. Other members of the girls' line-up included Joanne Callender of Dublin and P.J. Moore of California.

Sperber was the EBAL's leading scorer in boys' competition and was also a tiger on the boards.

Moore, California; Joanne Callender, Dublin; Carol Dolsby, Monte Vista; Patty Shirley, Livermore; Janice Paxiao, Livermore; Jayne Kuhns, Amador Valley; Sheryl Withoft, Amador; Linda Silva, Monte Vista; Sue Collar, Monte Vista, and Debbie Oksen, Amador.

Fair horse racing threatened by Albany

A bid by major race track interests to move a trotting season to Golden Gate Fields in Albany, and thus put it in competition with county fair seasons at Vallejo and Pleasanton, could be the trigger for a much larger dispute.

The latter could be the question of major horse race tracks such as the Bay Area track and those in Southern California usurping dates that have previously been the exclusive domain of county fair tracks.

Lee Hall, secretary - manager of the Alameda County Fair Association in Pleasanton, was in Sacramento Thursday for a Western Fairs Association race committee meeting and was to attend a joint fair committee meet today in Monterey.

It was not known what items were to be discussed but the likelihood of the major tracks versus county fair tracks question coming up seemed possible.

Followup meetings to both are scheduled Monday (Western Fairs Assoc. race committee in San Francisco) and Thursday (joint fair committee in Sacramento).

The proposed move of a trotting season, previously held under the auspices of Golden Bear Raceway at Cal Expo in Sacramento, to Golden Gate Fields this summer has concerned not only Hall and the County Fair board but the Solano fair management, whose previously established race dates would be in direct conflict with any such meeting at Golden Gate Fields.

The Alameda County Fair Association board has gone on record as being opposed to any racing meet at the Bay Area tracks (G.G.F. and Bay Meadows) during the run of the Pleasanton or Vallejo fairs.

Joey, at 6-6, was the tallest all-star, and dominated play for the Matadors.

Jorgensen, Hall and Hansen were all vital cogs in the Dons' championship season. Jenkins was probably the Cowboys' best shooter while McCreary landed all-around talents to the Poke unit.

Kuhns, Withoft and Oksen led the Dons to second place in the North Coast Section playoffs behind Pittsburg. Dolsby and Moore were the league's best shooter, each hitting over 30 points in one game this season.

Shirley and Paxiao were the main cogs in a Poke team that tied for the EBAL round-robin crown with Amador Valley and Monte Vista. The Pokes beat Amador Valley in the last regular game of the season to force a playoff and Shirley and Paxiao were the main reasons.

Players selected to the boys' honorable mention list were Jim Boulware of Dublin, Larry Walters of California, Dave Cowan of Monte Vista and Brad Hallock of San Ramon.

Virgil star in Falcon loss

Virgil Ridge came through with an ironman performance for Foothill High School's baseball team on the mound yesterday but errors proved to be the Falcons' downfall as they fell to visiting Del Valle 6-1 in a non-league contest.

Ridge had 10 strikeouts and gave up but five hits in going the distance. However, the Falcons committed four errors. Only two Del Valle runs were earned.

Del Valle jumped off to a 3-0 lead in the third inning and coasted from there.

Foothill scored its only run in the seventh when Steve Gomes and Ridge walked and Del Valle third baseman Dave Johnson made two fielding errors to score Gomes. Foothill had two hits, one by Pat Geck in the third inning, and another by Sam Sisneroz in the sixth. Both players stole second after their hits.

Mack sprinters star as Foothill falls

McClymonds' sprinters were just too much for the Foothill track team yesterday, as the Oakland school won both relays en route to a 60-46 win over the Falcons yesterday on Dublin High School's track.

Recording a fine time of 3:41.8 in the mile relay, Mack picked up important first - place victories in the 100 and 220, including a sweep in the 220.

Randy Tollner clocked a 10.3 100 to pace the visitors, while Leon Lynn swept to a 24.4 in the 220 to lead the sweep.

Foothill's Craig Johnson finished second in the 100 with a 10.5 time, but came back later to take an impressive win in the 440, grinding out a 54.0 time in the swirling winds.

Miller leaves Quakes

SAN JOSE — Jon Miller, the "voice" of the San Jose Earthquakes, won't be back with the team for a third season.

Miller accepted the broadcasting position with the Washington diplomats, instead of returning to the Quakes. San Jose is now auditioning announcers for its broadcasts.

Tickets for the Earthquakes' preseason game against the Portland Timbers Sunday at the Livermore Valley Stadium are still available at many outlets in the valley area.

Ducats, priced at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 18, can be purchased at Travel Universal in Livermore and Pleasanton, Soccer Unlimited in Dublin, Dutch Pride Dairy in Dublin, Dublin Sporting Goods and the Alamo Pharmacy in Alamo.

Evangelist Jimmy Swaggart is seen locally on two area television stations and on 170 other stations across the country.

TV Not The Only Way To Preach The Gospel

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The gospel according to Jimmy Swaggart is big business.

Spreading the word of the Lord the Swaggart way calls for one of the most extensive daily gospel programs in the Christian world, a 15-minute tape sent to more than 503 radio stations around the globe and 30-minute TV programs aired on 172 stations.

It calls for a printing press turning out one million pieces of religious literature a month.

It calls for an airplane and three-day crusades demanding a minimum travel of 10,000 miles a month.

It calls for a Baton Rouge headquarters grown in six years to the size of two football fields, holdings worth "a couple of million" and donations received from around the world adding up to $600,000 to $700,000 each month.

In a taping room sits what Swaggart describes as the largest Telex duplication system in the world, capable of reproducing from Swaggart's master tape 51 radio cassettes in four minutes.

In the next room, a printing press is spewing out Swaggart's literature. "The Post Office tells us we send out more mail each day than anyone in the state, including the state Capitol and Exxon," said Swaggart.

Across the street in the complex is the television duplication center. In addition to his radio broadcasting, Four machines costing $90,000 each duplicate the batch of master video tapes the evangelist periodically cuts in Nashville under the direction of the producers of "Hee Haw."

The shows are seen in the Bay Area on Sunday mornings at 8 a.m. on Channel 10 and at 9:30 a.m. on Channel 11.

Swaggart Broadcasting Inc. headquarters in the complex, anchored by WLUX, Baton Rouge, the all-gospel radio station Swaggart acquired after lengthy litigation three years ago.

"After we saw the impact of WLUX, we felt it would be advantageous to the work of the Lord to have more outlets for our gospel," the evangelist said.

Letters to The Times

Superintendent defended

Editor, The Times:
As a member of the Amador District High School board I am concerned with statements ... regarding our superintendent, Dr. Bruce Newlin. Several ads have appeared in local newspapers, letters have been written etc. with information that I consider to be, to say the least, misleading.

Dr. Newlin's salary ... is $35,000 per year. He is superintendent for two school districts, the Pleasanton Elementary and the Amador High School district. The High School District, therefore, pays Dr. Newlin $17,500 per year for a full year's contract. This is actually less than we pay many teachers in our District for a 181-day teaching contract.

Dr. Newlin also has use of a District car which is a 1974 Chevrolet with 70 thousand miles, hardly a "luxury car" ... This car is also available for use by other administrators of the District Office staff.

The most important item however, is in the area of confidence. I have polled all the members of the ... school board and we are in total agreement ... Dr. Newlin is doing an excellent job for the District. We consider him to be a competent, dedicated superintendent.

Finally, it is proper within the District that all matters regarding criticism of any employee be they a teacher, janitor or superintendent are confidential and should be discussed at executive - type board sessions. This is especially true on matters of competence. I hope that in the future the superintendent will be given the same courtesy that is granted to all employees of our District.

Wayne R. Barnes
Board member, AJUHS

A lost opportunity

Editor, The Times:
Where does one begin in assessment of the American dilemma ... the inability of this mighty nation to marshal its people, its resources and its know-how to solve our problems. Like a giant in a drunken stupor, doped by too much of everything ... too much pseudo science and pseudo technology and a political establishment obsessed with the "quick fix" as the standard solution to every problem ... With eyes glued on Washington because of recent national scandals, we find ourselves unable to realize and articulate the local scandals. Our "hassle" over the sewage issue is a striking example. Most of our people don't even know there is a problem. Our elected public officials have spent over half a million dollars of public money ... to isolate and define the problem. To date, there is no adequate nor accurate statement of the problem and little likelihood of there ever being one ... Hopefully ... a coincidence of drought, energy shortage and too much filth have produced a crisis of sufficient gravity to get the attention of the American people ... Let us insist that sewage effluent and garbage wastes produce revenue as well as clean water, oxygen for the air we breathe, natural gas for our homes and farm produce ...

The know-how is here to make the Valley a veritable paradise with lakes and trees and grass, cattle and birds. To fail to recycle our wastes, all of them, at this time will almost certainly doom this Valley to a continuing decline far into the future ... another of history's tragedies.

Drug report praised

Neil Heilpern

The Times
I'm writing this letter to let you know that I feel your work on putting the PCP report together and the final outcome is superb. It is by far the best piece of news media coverage on drug abuse that I have experienced in my career in the field.

The work you have done in interviewing and the choices you made on putting the thing together were highly creative and reflected an extremely real perspective on the situation covered with this particular drug problem.

I really have a value for the type of work you do, and I'm excited about anything we can do together in the future.

Tufold supported

Copy of a letter to:
School Board members and the Superintendent

I wonder how many people in Livermore realize there are families in Livermore High School attendance area who believe and support Tufold? These are often families which involve their children in the decision-making process and allow them choices as well as giving them responsibility for those choices.

I live on the east side of town and so far my children have chosen to remain with their friends at Livermore High. However, at the semester break, my younger son (a junior) transferred to Granada. He hopes that Tufold will better meet his needs and interests. I hope school will be more challenging and stimulating for him. In September his younger sister starts high school at Granada. I hope Tufold will be there for her.

Bill Schopp of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory demonstrates the role of air in transmitting sounds.

LLL to show sound needs air waves

LIVERMORE — The existence of air is as important to hearing as it is to breathing, as a week-long demonstration at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory March 14-18 will prove.

Bill Schopp, mechanical technician at LLL, will use a machine to prove that sound waves cannot travel without air.

Atop the machine is a cylinder containing a speaker and microphone. When air is in the tube, sound from the speaker is picked up by the microphone and can be heard. But when a switch is thrown and air is sucked from the cylinder, silence prevails.

The reason for the silence is that sound travels by compressed waves of air. With the air removed, the sound cannot go anywhere — like a ship without water.

This lack of air, or vacuum, is essential to many household items besides the common vacuum cleaner. Light bulbs would burn out in seconds if they did not contain a vacuum. Television picture tubes contain a vacuum so that the electron beam inside will produce sharp pictures.

Schopp has been working with vacuum technology at LLL for 15 years. This technology allows scientists to coat objects with very thin metallic coatings, to contain sophisticated electron beam welding or scanning equipment, and to form very hot clouds of fusion fuel called "plasmas."

Technicians Week is held every month at the LLL Visitors Center, located east of Livermore on Greenville Road about two miles south of Interstate 580. Hours during the demonstration week are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

VCSD's public quiz falls short of goal

DUBLIN — A Valley Community Services District (VCSD) plan to obtain public input via a questionnaire about recreational facilities and programs has been less than successful since its beginning a month ago.

The VCSD Citizens' Advisory Committee for Parks and Recreation is in charge of the operation, according to Joe Covello. He is Chairman of the CAC committee.

Six thousand questionnaires were distributed throughout grades K thru 8 in Dublin and San Ramon schools, Covello said.

"Less than two dozen have been returned," he continued.

He said his committee would like to know what the public would like as far as recreational facilities and programs. They thought the questionnaire would be a way to get information, Covello indicated.

"We also had Brian May at Shannon Community Center send out the forms to various sports groups. Now we would like to reach people who don't have children in school or who participate in sports activities," Covello said he didn't know whether lack of response was due to an apathetic attitude by the area's transient population or some other reason.

"I find it hard to believe that all of the people here are 100 per cent happy with existing programs and facilities," Covello stated. "We are very interested in providing the public with what it wants but they must let us know what their wants and needs are."

He said anyone wanting a questionnaire or more information should contact the Shannon Community Center at 11600 Shannon Ave., Dublin, 828-7711 or the VCSD general office at 7051 Dublin Blvd., 828-7711.

LIVERMORE — Registration for spring programs sponsored by Livermore Area Recreation and Park District will be held 7 to 9 p.m., March 30.

The spring brochure, to be distributed March 21, will include many regular popular classes and some new additions.

Offered this year are courses in wine appreciation, social dancing, recreation backpacking, judo and self defense for women and girls, nature and science exploration, golf, tennis, karate and yoga.

Also included are gymnastics, kinder movement, figure improvement and pre and post natal exercise, the care and culture of house plants and gourmet Turkish cooking.

Trampoline classes will continue this season along with baton, tap, guitar, art classes, pottery, macrame and quilt making.

Programs for young children will include Tiny Tot sessions and some new classes for toddlers. Art classes for children and adults are planned and a full schedule of aquatics programs will be offered.

Teens and senior citizens will find programs of interest and the district also includes adult sport activity schedules and youth after-school sport events.

The brochure will be available at LARP offices, 71 Trevarno Road; the Chamber of Commerce, 1723 Barcelona St.; Livermore library, 1000 So. Liver-more Ave.; and Recreation Center, 8th and H streets.

Registration will continue at district offices until all classes are filled. Non-residents may register beginning April 4. All classes start April 11.

Mail-in registration for Tiny Tots, trampoline, tennis and golf classes only will be handled by a special central office this season and no hand-delivered or telephoned applications for these classes can be accepted.

Rowell Ranch parcel pondered as preserve

Alameda County Bureau OAKLAND — While 43-acres of the Rowell Ranch are virtually assured their future as the rodeo grounds, the fate of an adjoining 26-acre parcel and nearly 400 acres of grazing land to the south is up in the air.

Executors of the estate of the late Margaret Rowell and county supervisors could not come to an agreement yesterday on a "life estate" that would preserve the smaller parcel for heirs, yet preclude the sale and ultimate development of the land.

But the rodeo grounds, some 43-acres to the south of I-580 in the Dublin Canyon, apparently will go to the Hayward Area Recreation Department (HARD) for continued use as a rodeo.

HARD has been offered the land for half its $290,000 value, said estate attorney Jack Smith. The only stumbling block to be worked out is who will operate the rodeo.

Smith said a non-profit organization at first subsidized by the estate may be formed to run the annual event.

He also hinted the contested adjoining parcel may become a national "Rodeo Hall of Fame."

County zoning administrator Dick Flynn locked the smaller lot into a "life estate" that would allow the heirs to live on it, but not be developed after their death.

But Smith objects, claiming Flynn's decision "is a bad economic deal."

Flynn's decision could force the heirs to sell "fee and title" to the 26-acre parcel along with a large, 370-acre agricultural portion to the south.

But because the "life estate" would cool any buyer, the price would fall, argued Smith.

The ultimate heirs, he said, will want to sell the land for continued agricultural use.

But Flynn said the county was "hoisted on its own petard once, and we're not anxious to do it a second time." The county, he explained, was "burned" once on a life estate "where the original intention lasted about six months."

Flynn and planning department director Bill Fraley said improvements to I-580 and a new Frontage Road along the property would increase pressure for development of the land into homesites.

Under supervisor Valerie Raymond's suggestion, Smith and Flynn will try to work out a compromise. She suggested the two lots be combined and some 30 acres added to form one legal, 100-acre, agriculturally zoned parcel.

The board will rehear the request April 7.

Smith admitted he hadn't thought of Raymond's idea, "although I thought we'd considered every possibility."

Parks jobs

Signups to complete the revenue operations exam and compete for spring-summer seasonal jobs in the East Bay Regional Park District are now open, according to Virgie Noll, EBRPD personnel officer.

Job seekers for the positions of concession attendant, assistant concession manager, concession manager, food service attendant/fry cook and park attendant must register to take the written examination for Revenue Operations by 5 p.m. Friday, March 18.

All candidates must meet the minimum qualifications for the jobs.

lege students, 16 years of age or older and must possess a Social Security Card. Attendant works selling food, renting boats, parking cars.

ASSISTANT CONCESSION MANAGER II — Applicants must be 16 years of age or older and must possess a Social Security Card, and be in good health. Manages operation of District Snack Stands, parking facilities, boating facilities.

Presbyterian building plan

Planners OK asbestos plants

PLEASANTON — The planning commission doesn't think much of the city council's desire to ban asbestos processing plants in the city.

Commissioners approved an ordinance specifying various kinds of uses for industrial districts and decided to restore asbestos to the list.

It had been removed from the list by the city council at the request of Vice - mayor Joyce Le-Claire. She felt that asbestos processing can cause cancer and is not a good use to have in a neighborhood.

The item came up a few months ago when the council was discussing what types of uses could exist in an industrial park near the Mission Park residential area.

Planning Commission Chairperson Bob Butler objected to banning asbestos processing. "You are legislating what can be done by an industry," said Butler. He felt that the asbestos industry has methods to keep the process clean. He also felt it is not the city's responsibility to protect workers from a manufacturing process. The state can do that, if necessary.

Commissioner Gregg Doherty agreed. "The next thing you know, they'll want to exclude fiberglass. The city council should know that's strongly felt here," said Doherty.

Commissioner Bill Jamieson agreed with both commissioners.

SRV schools take steps to reduce property losses

DANVILLE — In an effort to reduce loss of school property resulting from theft and burglary, the San Ramon Valley Unified School District has taken steps toward an "Operation Identification" project.

According to district business manager Dr. Orrin Batchelor, the district maintenance staff visited every school, office and support facility and engraved "SRVUSD" on all business, office and audio-visual equipment. The district has reported the protective measure to the Contra Costa County Sheriff's Department.

"We expect that future loss of equipment will be reduced significantly," Batchelor commented, "since the sale of stolen property is virtually impossible when the items are marked. When the possibility of profit is eliminated, losses should decrease."

The district is currently working with Capt. Allan Burton of the sheriff's investigation division to explore other alternatives the school district can use to reduce future theft and vandalism loss.

Join DMV panel on public file access

LIVERMORE — Irked by the fact that anyone can take your license number and get information about you from the Department of Motor Vehicles?

The DMV in Livermore has reserved its March 16 "Back Seat Drivers' Public Panel" for a discussion on the matter. Anyone interested can attend the 7:30 p.m. meeting at the Livermore Library.

"Some panels in other areas of the state have vehemently objected to the policy concerning availability of records to the public," said local DMV manager Elizabeth Thayer. "The result has been a number of bills in Sacramento to restrict the practice."

Anyone can plunk down their coins — usually ranging from 25 to 75 are forwarded to DMV in Sacramento.

Numerous bills were introduced in the legislature last year dealing with release of DMV information but none became law. A handful of similar bills are up for consideration this year.

AB508 would prohibit public inspection, sale or dissemination of vehicle registration or driver's license information unless the person whose record is the subject of the inspection agrees in writing.

AB171 and SB186 promote confidentiality of accident and registration records only.

SB215 and AB296 concern public availability of both driver's license and registration information. Access would only be for courts and law enforcement agencies, vehicle manufacturers seeking owners of defective vehicles, the National Automobile Theft

Bureau, and licensed drivers and registered owners seeking their own records. Accident reports would be available only to courts, law enforcement, and parties in a criminal or civil action involving the reported accident.

Bringing disco to town

LIVERMORE — A new company — RagDoll Productions — is planning to bring more entertainment to the Valley.

Sparked by Barry Carlos of Livermore and Charlie Moss of Berkeley, the group has already sponsored two dances in its "Disco '77" series.

A three-band spectacular dance is scheduled to-night from 8-12 at The Barn.

Headlining the evening will be a nine-piece band, Lexington, which includes two locals, Carlos on saxophone and Larry DeRosa on guitar. Other band members are from Walnut Creek, Moraga, San Carlos, San Leandro and Richmond.

Carlos is producer and arranger for the group, which has previously appeared on programs with Stevie Wonder, Sly and the Family Stone, and other name bands.

Other local bands scheduled for tonight's dance include Homegrown and Southbound.

RagDoll Productions has also scheduled a March 26 dance at The Barn and will release the featured entertainment at a later date.

They also plan future dances in Pleasanton and Dublin.

The production company actually formed in 1973 but is new to the Valley, according to Carlos, who has been in the business 15 years. During the 1960's he was active with groups such as Buffalo Springfield, Paul Revere and the Raiders and The Birds.

He came to Livermore "because it's quieter" and is bringing the entertainment closer to home for the "100,000 plus people who now have to go over the hill to San Francisco and Oakland for their entertainment."

"Eventually we want to put on some outdoor programs at the fairgrounds," he said. "We want people to have a good time and promise to keep the problems down to a minimum."

RagDoll Productions is planning to produce both an LP and a single in the near future, he said. The single will be called "Dance on Disco Lady" and will appear on the RagDoll label and test marketed before the production company approaches one of the major record producers for large scale marketing.

Parents may call VMH for visits

LIVERMORE — Parents of pediatric patients who are scheduled for surgery at Valley Memorial Hospital are invited to contact the Pediatric Department to arrange a time to visit the hospital.

The scheduled parties for pediatric patients and their families have been temporarily canceled. Until the parties are resumed, the hospital staff encourages individual tours for children before their operation. Arrangements for a tour can be made by calling the pediatric staff for an appointment at 447-7000, extension 353.

Musical Gamut

Hundreds of organs built to provide accompaniment to silent films half a century ago remain playable. In addition to imitating all the instruments of a band from drums, trumpets and trombones to violins, clarinets and cymbals, they can duplicate the sounds of a clanging trolley bell, the hooves of galloping horses, birds' songs, surf, a train whistle and an Oriental gong.
